CALL FOR PANELISTS

SYMPOSIUM TITLE: Population Health in the COVID-19 Pandemic

DEADLINE TO RESPOND: July 20, 2020 by 11:59 pm EDT

The Population Health RIG is pleased to sponsor a call for speakers for a proposed Guaranteed Symposium titled Population Health in the COVID-19 Pandemic. The symposium will include brief individual podium presentations followed by a moderated discussion among panelists and questions from participants.

Topics of interest for this symposium may include but are not limited to:

- The contribution of nurses to population health during the COVID-19 pandemic
- Findings of nurse-led research related to the COVID-19 pandemic, including questions related to the healthcare workforce, patient outcomes, and mental health
- Challenges, strategies, and lessons learned during the COVID-19 pandemic
- Innovative strategies for overcoming the challenges of conducting research and during a global pandemic

Interested speakers are encouraged to send a biosketch and objectives of the proposed presentation to the Chair of the Population Health RIG, Kim Hartley at griffiky@mail.uc.edu by July 20, 2020 at 11:59 pm Eastern.

Panelists will be notified of their inclusion status for the submitted symposium by August 4, 2020.

PLEASE NOTE: The symposium will be offered during the MNRS 2021 Annual Conference, March 24-27, 2021 in Des Moines, Iowa. Date and time of this symposium will be shared in late 2020.
