

Name: Jiyang Ling, PhD, MS, RN
Current Title: Associate Professor
Affiliation: Michigan State University
Candidate for: MNRS Nominating Committee

Personal Statement:

I have been an active MNRS member for about 10 years, and proactively involved in MNRS abstract and grant reviews since 2014. In 2020, I became the Co-Chair for the Health Promoting Behaviors Across the Lifespan RIG and have been working diligently in this capacity, together with the other Co-Chair, to promote effective communication and strengthen collaboration within the RIG by developing a RIG member research interest directory and newsletter. In 2019, I received the MNRS Harriet H. Werley New Investigator Award. Offering evidence of my ability to effectively lead and manage teams and achieve successful outcomes, I was first author on a publication that was competitively selected to receive the MNRS/WJNR Best Faculty Paper Award in 2019 and have published 60 peer-reviewed manuscripts with nearly 100 scientific presentations. I also serve as the PI for a NINR-funded R21 and a Michigan Health Endowment Fund grant to test two innovative health promoting interventions among low-income families with young children, and a Co-I for a NHLBI-funded R61/33 to examine a healthy eating and physical activity intervention among urban low-income adolescents. I am very interested in increasing my involvement in MNRS by joining the MNRS Board and becoming an Officer. I am very passionate about MNRS and fully committed to serve to the best of my ability in this leadership role. My personal strengths include being persistent, well-organized, hard-working, enthusiastic, and loyal to my colleagues. I champion a culture of diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging within MNRS and the nursing profession. I am confident that I am well-qualified to serve as a nominating committee member. I deeply appreciate having this valuable opportunity. I look forward to continuing to serve in this prestigious organization.
